Market commentary

The persistence of core inflation across the developed world at well above central bank targets remained the driving narrative for global markets in Q2, leading to further rises in policy rates and significant shifts in market expectations for peak rates. The banking crisis in March caused short term wobbles in markets, including a flight into bonds, but any fear of systemic risks was quickly dispelled. The key issues for markets remain inflation, the speed with which it will be brought back to target and the damage inflicted on economies in so doing. Across the world, headline inflation is falling, but core prices continue to surprise on the upside, labour markets remain tight, wages are rising at uncomfortably high levels, and the risks of wage-price spirals remain a worry. Central banks have adopted a distinctly hawkish approach prioritising the control of inflation at the risk of damaging growth.

While other major economies grapple with inflation, China's economic recovery following the end of its Covid restrictions has shown signs of fading. The manufacturing sector has fallen into recessionary conditions, with factory gate production growth slowing sharply and Purchasing Managers' Indices indicating further weakness ahead. The People's Bank of China reacted to the deflation of producer prices by cutting its key lending rates, a signalling tool indicating the likely use of other measures to stimulate the economy. Weakness in China's economy has been a significant factor in commodity markets, which have remained under pressure in the first half of the year.

Developed markets, measured by the MSCI World index, returned 6.0% over the month, with the US returning 6.6%. Emerging markets rose 3.8% in local terms. Bond markets were flat in June, as measured by the ICE BofA Global Broad Market index, with US Treasuries returning -0.7%.

We expect the second half of the year to stay challenging. Leading indicators point to weakness in the manufactured goods part of economies and policy rates are expected to remain high to break a wage-price spiral developing before this cycle can end. However, the peak is in sight. Policy is now firmly in restrictive territory and a slowdown ahead will lead to a softer labour market and ease wage pressures. A turn in the cycle might not be imminent but it will come, and within months the prospect of cuts in policy rates will re-emerge. We remain patient before adding to risk assets but are looking for opportunities to take advantage of the attractive returns now available.

Risk warnings and important notes

Collective investments are generally medium to long-term investments. The value of units may go down as well as up and past performance is not necessarily a guide to the future.

Collective investments are traded at ruling prices. Commission and incentives may be paid and, if so, would be included in the overall costs. All performance is calculated on a total return basis, after deduction of all fees and commissions and in US dollar terms. Forward pricing is used.

The Fund invests in other collective investments, which levy their own charges. This could result in a higher fee structure for the Fund.

Fluctuations in the value of the underlying funds, the income from them and changes in interest rates mean that the value of the Fund and any income arising from it may fall, as well as rise, and is not guaranteed.

Deductions of charges and expenses mean that you may not get back the amount you invested.

The fees charged within the Fund and by the managers of the underlying funds are not guaranteed and may change in the future.

Higher risk investments may be subject to sudden and larger falls in value in comparison to other investments. Higher risk investments include, but are not limited to, investments in smaller companies, even in developed markets, investments in emerging markets or single country debt or equity funds and investments in high yield or non-investment grade debt.

Notwithstanding ongoing monitoring of the underlying funds within the Fund, there can be no assurance that the performance of the funds will achieve their stated objectives.

The Fund will contain shares or units in underlying funds that invest internationally. The value of an investor's investment and the income arising from it will therefore be subject to exchange rate fluctuations.

Foreign securities may have additional material risks, depending on the specific risks affecting that country, such as: potential constraints on liquidity and the repatriation of funds; macroeconomic risks; political risks; foreign exchange risks; tax risks; settlement risks; and potential limitations on the availability of market information.

The Fund may contain shares or units in underlying funds that do not permit dealing every day. Investments in such funds will only be realisable on their dealing days. It is not possible to assess the proper market price of these investments other than on the fund's dealing days.

No borrowing will be undertaken by the Fund except for the purpose of meeting short term liquidity requirements. Borrowings will not exceed 10% of the net asset value of the Fund. For such purpose, the securities of the Fund may be pledged. No scrip borrowing will be allowed. The Cell is not permitted to enter into any form of borrowing or loan arrangement with other cells of the Company nor other collective investment schemes of the Manager.

While derivative instruments may be used for hedging purposes, the risk remains that the relevant instrument may not necessarily fully correlate to the investments in the Fund and accordingly not fully reflect changes in the value of the investment, giving rise to potential net losses.

Forward contracts are neither traded on exchanges nor standardised. Principals dealing in these markets are also not required to make markets in the currencies they trade, with the result that these markets may experience periods of illiquidity. Banks and dealers will normally act as principals and usually each transaction is negotiated on an individual basis.

The Manager has the right to close the Fund to new investors, in order to manage it more efficiently, in accordance with its mandate.

Investment in the Fund may not be suitable for all investors. Investors should obtain advice from their financial adviser before proceeding with an investment.

Investors are reminded that any forecasts and/or commentary included in this MDD are not guaranteed to occur, and merely reflect the interpretation of the public information and propriety research available to the Investment Manager at a particular point in time.
