■ Market commentary

Equity markets struggled for direction in August, falling sharply initially before a partial recovery reduced losses at the end of the month. Facing uncertainty about the Fed's ability to bring inflation to its target level without triggering a financial accident or recession, markets were buffeted by economic data releases, bad news on the economy generally interpreted as good news for markets as it eases the job of the Fed and brings the policy tightening cycle closer to its end. Early signs of a softening in the economy, given a drop in consumer confidence and rise in unemployment rate were not enough to persuade the Fed Chair Powell to deviate from the 'tighter for longer' narrative stating that he still sees 'significant upside risks to inflation, which would require further tightening of monetary policy'.

The Fed's balancing act is mirrored in the EU and UK, both of which face even bigger challenges, with their economies slowing more markedly and inflation proving stickier. The key German economy is facing a storm: its heavy dependency on Russian gas and a huge manufacturing sector whose biggest trading partner is China are proving to be major structural headwinds. While most central banks across the developed world continue to tighten policy, the reverse is underway in China, where authorities have made small rate cuts, reacting to a sharp slowdown in growth and worrying combination of cyclical and structural headwinds.

Developed markets, measured by the MSCI World index, returned -2.4% over the month, with the US returning -1.6%. Emerging markets fell -6.2% in local terms. Bond markets returned -1.2% in August, as measured by the ICE BofA Global Broad Market index, with US Treasuries returning -0.5%.

The key to market direction remains the battle to control inflation. The longer policy rates remain at restrictive levels the greater the risk of a financial accident and/or recession. This is a challenging environment for much of the corporate sector, and the uncertainty is likely to be a headwind for equity markets, where the immediate outlook continues to call for caution. Government bonds, however, for the first time in many years, are now firmly in attractive valuation territory, and would be the biggest beneficiaries of a recession or financial mishap. We are increasing exposure to safe-haven government bonds, especially in short maturities given their significant yield pick-up, while remaining patient before adding to risk assets.

■ Risk warnings and important notes

Investment in the Fund may not be suitable for all investors and financial advice should be sought before proceeding with an investment. Past performance is not indicative of future returns and there can be no assurance that the performance of the Fund will achieve its stated objective. All performance is calculated on a total returns basis, net of all fees and commissions and in US dollar terms

Collective investments are generally medium to long term investments and are traded at ruling prices. The value of the Fund and any income arising from it are not guaranteed and may fall, as well as rise, due to the value of its holdings, the income derived from them, and changes in interest rates. The Fund will hold shares or units in underlying funds which invest internationally, which will be exposed to exchange rate fluctuations, and may erode any potential gains.

Higher risk investments, such as small companies (even in developed markets), emerging markets, single country debt, equity funds, high yield and sub-investment grade debt may be more prone to sudden and larger falls in value in comparison to other investments. Unregulated funds may permit a greater degree of leverage than is permitted with regulated funds that are available to the general public in South Africa, which increases volatility and the risk of larger losses should the fund's value decrease.

The Fund may contain shares or units in underlying funds that do not permit dealing every day. It is not possible to immediately assess the proper market price of these investments, as they will only be realisable on their dealing days.

A fund of fund collective investment scheme only invests in other collective investments, which levy their own charges. The fees charged within the Fund and by the managers of the underlying funds are not guaranteed and are subject to change thereby impacting the Fund's performance. Commissions and incentives may be paid and, if so, would be included in the overall costs. Deductions of charges and expenses mean that you may not get back the amount you invested.
