■ Market commentary

It would be difficult to construct a more challenging backdrop for markets than that of the past six months. The extraordinary effects of the pandemic on supply chains, the ensuing massive loosening of fiscal and monetary policy, and the release of pent-up demand as Covid restrictions ended, reawakened inflation. Central banks misjudged the persistency of the inflation, and across much of the developed world have been forced into an aggressive tightening of policy. The challenges faced by policy makers were then compounded by Russia's act of aggression, exacerbating inflation, especially of food and energy, damaging business and consumer confidence, and triggering intense uncertainty and fears of global recession.

In recent weeks the fear of recession has taken hold: high energy and food prices are dampening consumer confidence and discretionary spending, corporate margins are under pressure from surging producer input prices, and rising interest rates are discouraging spending and investment. A sharp slowdown in growth across much of the world is underway with inevitable consequences for corporate earnings.

Developed markets, measured by the MSCI World index, returned -8.7% over the month, with the US returning -8.3% while the UK returned -5.3% in local currency terms. Emerging markets fell -6.6% in local terms. Bond markets returned -3.1% in June, as measured by the Bank of America Merrill Lynch Global Broad Market index, with US Treasuries returning -1.0% and US corporate investment grade bonds returning -2.8%.

The world is entering a sharp cyclical slowdown, uncertainties are exceptionally high, and risks of further periods of volatility and falls in markets cannot be dismissed. But markets have fallen sharply, with the result that much has already been discounted. As we move through the second half of the year inflation is likely to have peaked, and the Fed's tightening coming close to an end, ahead of other central banks, which in turn could weaken the dollar, whose strength has been a significant headwind for markets. A soft landing will be tough for the Fed to engineer, but recent market moves suggest that there is seemingly little priced in for that favourable outcome.

■ Risk warnings and important notes

Performance figures prior to 08 December 2020, the inception date of the Class C ZAR share, have been simulated to reflect Class B USD share's past performance in South African Rands (ZAR).

Investment in the Fund may not be suitable for all investors and financial advice should be sought before proceeding with an investment. Past performance is not indicative of future returns and there can be no assurance that the performance of the Fund will achieve its stated objective. All performance is calculated on a total returns basis, net of all fees and commissions and in ZAR terms

Collective investments are generally medium to long term investments and are traded at ruling prices. The value of the Fund and any income arising from it are not guaranteed and may fall, as well as rise, due to the value of its holdings, the income derived from them, and changes in interest rates. The Fund will hold shares or units in underlying funds which invest internationally, which will be exposed to exchange rate fluctuations, and may erode any potential gains.

Higher risk investments, such as small companies (even in developed markets), emerging markets, single country debt, equity funds, high yield and sub-investment grade debt may be more prone to sudden and larger falls in value in comparison to other investments. Unregulated funds may permit a greater degree of leverage than is permitted with regulated funds that are available to the general public in South Africa, which increases volatility and the risk of larger losses should the fund's value decrease.

The Fund may contain shares or units in underlying funds that do not permit dealing every day. It is not possible to immediately assess the proper market price of these investments, as they will only be realisable on their dealing days.

A fund of fund collective investment scheme only invests in other collective investments, which levy their own charges. The fees charged within the Fund and by the managers of the underlying funds are not guaranteed and are subject to change thereby impacting the Fund's performance. Commissions and incentives may be paid and, if so, would be included in the overall costs. Deductions of charges and expenses mean that you may not get back the amount you invested.
